HERRMANN'S 'PAVAEX' IS BOON TO MANKIND

In years to come, when writers attempt to evaluate the medical profession in the light of what it has accomplished toward making life more livable and worthwhile for mankind, they will include among their citations (and this can be said with no small degree of certainty) the name of one Louis Herrmann, professor of surgery and enthusiastic explorer of medical mysteries who, three years ago, conceived what Paul de Kruif describes as a "simple and beautiful science" which "is destined to save the lives of many forlorn ones who, before Herrmann, would have been better off dead." The discovery is "Pavaex"—so named, says Mr. de Kruif, because it gives "dying legs Passive Vascular Exercises," thereby giving the owners of the legs (dying because of mysteriously hardened arteries and, often, the devastating spread of gangrene) a new lease on life.

Gets M.D. at Washington U.

Dr. Louis G. Herrmann, Z and AD, won his A.B. at the University of Michigan in 1920, just two decades after his birth in Fort Wayne, Indiana. In June, 1924, he graduated from the School of Medicine of Washington University, in St. Louis, Missouri, with the degree of Doctor of Medicine; was an interne in the Maryland General Hospital, Baltimore until March, 1925; and became medical house officer in Boston's Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for a little more than a year. And, while he was absorbing "gobs of science and surgery with an entirely Herrmannish fury and enthusiasm" at all these places, Mr. de Kruif relates in his remarkably human article, "New Feet For Old" (Country Gentleman for December, 1934) "untold numbers of probers, dissectors, and curious mechanical tinkers were busy getting his great day ready for him—as they picked away at this puzzle of how legs grow weak under bodies still strong—why feet die while brains are still eager and active—"

Spends Four Years in Cleveland

Assistant Resident Surgeon, Lakeside Hospital, Cleveland, July 1, 1926 to July 1, 1927; Crile Research Fellow in Surgery, Western Reserve University School of Medicine, July 1, 1927 to July 1, 1928; Director of the Laboratory of Surgical Research, Western Reserve University and the Lakeside Hospital, 1927 and 1928; Resident Surgeon, Lakeside Hospital, 1929 to 1930; and Instructor in Surgery, Western Reserve University, 1929 to 1930—so reads Louis Herrmann's history for the four years preceding the all-important voyage to Europe out of which came his gift to a suffering people.

In 1930, Dr. Herrmann went abroad to become Exchange Instructor in Surgery

A.M.A. Luncheon Notice

Dr. Norman M. Macneill, P, chairman of the committee on arrangements for the Phi Rho Sigma luncheon to be held at the A.M.A. meeting in June, has informed the JOURNAL that the luncheon has been set for Wednesday, June 12, at the Ambassador Hotel. Dr. Macneill also expressed the wish that those members planning to attend will notify him of their intention. Tickets for the luncheon may be procured at the time of registration.

BARLOW GIFT FOUNDS NEW MEDICAL LIBRARY

When Dr. Walter Jarvis Barlow, Δ, laid the cornerstone of the Library of the Los Angeles County Medical Association on June 21, 1934, he not only heralded the appearance of a noteworthy addition to the field of medical research and study, but he crowned with a fitting gesture a personal work which is a lasting monument to his name.

The new library, a beautiful building located at 634 South Westlake Avenue in Los Angeles, and containing approximately 30,000 bound and unbound volumes and periodicals, is the result of the transfer of the Barlow Medical Library by its Board of Trustees to the Medical Association, and of the activities of the latter body which culminated in Dr. Barlow's setting of the cornerstone and in the rededication of the building on November 27, 1934.

Barlow Provides Needed Building

The Barlow Library came into existence in 1906 when Dr. Barlow, then a member of the faculty of the College of Medicine of the University of Southern California (later its dean), erected near the College a library building intended to fulfill the need created by the accumulation of medical literature known as the "Hendryx Medical Reference Library." This constantly growing collection had been started in 1897 with 50 volumes donated to the College by Dr. Wilbur A. Hendryx. Dr. Milbank Johnson, of Phi Rho Sigma's Alpha Chapter, augmented this beginning with 1,000 volumes of journals in 1900, and thereafter there was a constant addition of books and journals, contributed by members of the faculty and their friends.

The Barlow Medical Library Association, which has been in charge of the library until the transfer last year, also had its inception in 1906, when 48 physicians pledged themselves to contribute $25 annually for the support of the new building. It was opened in 1907, with Dr. Johnson serving as president of the trust-

INSTALL 35th CHAPTER AT LOUISIANA STATE

A new name was added to the roster of 34 chapters of Phi Rho Sigma when Alpha Mu Chapter was installed at Louisiana State University on Saturday, May 25, 1935, by District Councilor Francis L. Jaubert and Calhoun McDougall, Vice-President of the Grand Chapter and Chairman of the Committee on Expansion.

The ceremonies, held in the DeSoto Hotel in New Orleans, began with the initiation of the new chapter members by Delta Omicron Alpha Chapter (Tulane University). They are: Homer Douglas Barger (a transfer from Chi Beta Chapter, Emory University), Joseph Miron Brocato, Nicholas John Chetta, Charles Joseph Cucchiara, John Edward Garcia, Jr., John Morgan Lyons, William Foskey McDonnell, and Ernest Sidney Merse. The installation of the new chapter and the presentation of its charter followed immediately, and a banquet was then served in the hotel's Evangeline Room.

Alumni of Phi Rho Sigma on the faculty of the University are: William A. Love, Professor of Clinical Medicine; Henry Theodore Simon, Professor of Orthopedics; Hillaire De Bertrand Ogden, Assistant Professor of Urology; and Edwin August Socola, Assistant Professor of Pediatrics. All four are alumni of Delta Omicron Alpha Chapter.

ROYALTIES FINANCE STIPENDS

The Fraternity Jeweler's Cuff, publication of the Burr, Patterson and Auld Company, for November 1, 1934, contains the following item regarding scholarships and royalties:

"At the recent convention of Kappa Kappa Gamma held at Yellowstone National Park it was decided that the income of the fraternity from jewelry royalties be used in establishing three scholarships of $500.00 each. It was further decided that these scholarships should be awarded annually to any woman student regardless of whether she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma or some other sorority, or not a sorority member at all.

"This is especially interesting since there has been a movement among many small jewelry companies to prevent the payment of royalties to any fraternity. Certainly no one can have any logical objection to the royalty system when, after all, what it really amounts to is an indirect tax, and it would be extremely difficult to see how anyone could possibly object to the use of money received from royalties in the manner in which it is being used by Kappa Kappa Gamma."

and Assistant in Clinique Chirurgicale A in the University of Strasbourg, France, and, in the words of Mr. de Kruif, "to apprentice to surgeons who were masters of 'obliterative diseases of the arteries.'" "He had the advantage," writes the chronicler, "of a shrewd science of spotting the thread of dying feet long before gangrene's onset. He knew that the cramping pain in middle-aged folks' legs, hitting them after walking a little way and leaving them when they rested, had nothing to do with rheumatism or fallen arches. It was the cry of their leg and foot muscles—starving for blood."

Leriche and Clairmont Have No Solution

From Strasbourg, Dr. Herrmann went to Switzerland, where, on July 1, 1931, he became Assistant in the Chirurgische Universitäts Klinik under Professor Paul Clairmont, "celebrated surgeon of blood-vessels" who, Mr. de Kruif writes, could say no more about dying feet than had Leriche at Strasbourg who, when Herrmann asked if amputation were the only way to deal with gangrene, had shaken his head and said, "Yes, it is terrible."

Then Dame Fortune came knocking at Herrmann's door—and to his everlasting glory be it that he responded as nobly as he did. While skiing on Jungfrau Mountain with an old man—an acquaintance—Herrmann came face to face with a Revelation, for it dawned on him, as they sported in the snow, that this old man, who could hardly walk a block without experiencing terrible cramps, was behaving, in that thin air, "as if Herrmann's thirty-one-year-old legs had been under him." It was clear now, this mystery that had perplexed medical science so completely, for "the lack of the weight of the air, the air no longer pressing on that man's skin, let the little arteries, the tiny arteries expand, open up . . . so the blood could detour!" And so the problem resolved itself, as Herrmann himself told August Bier, famous German surgeon whom he met soon after at a surgical congress, into a matter of bringing blood down into the legs and getting it away—"flush the foot with blood and get it away, nourish starved feet and get the waste out of them—vacuum, then pressure; vacuum, then pressure!"

First Case a Success

Dr. Herrmann came home then and became assistant professor of surgery in the University of Cincinnati's college of medicine, in July, 1932, and Mr. de Kruif writes that "the speed with which Louis now put his strange idea to its acid test will never stop astounding me." By the middle of August he was hard at work with Patient No. 1, a forty-two year-old railroad man who had to choose between amputation and suicide (he told Herrmann), so unbearable was the pain which made his life a constant torment. For four weeks Herrmann applied his not-yet-named "Pavaex" treatment—"vacuum, then pressure"—and at the end of that

MEDICAL SOCIETY NEWS

The Fourth Annual Mid-winter Clinical Course in Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology was given by the Research Study Club in conjunction with the School of Medicine of the University of Southern California, from January 21 to February 1, 1935, with the following members of the Fraternity taking part: Dr. Hill Hastings, Professor Emeritus of Otolaryngology; Dr. J. McKenzie Brown, Δ, Professor of Otolaryngology; Dr. Simon Jesberg, Δ, Professor of Bronchoscopy; and Dr. Pierre Viole, Δ, Assistant Professor of Otolaryngology—all of the University of Southern California.

Dr. H. King Wade, XE, was elected to the presidency of the Mid-South Post Graduate Medical Assembly at the fifty-first annual convention, held in Memphis, Tennessee, February 12 to 15. Dr. J. A. Crisler, Jr., N, was a member of the program committee.

The Assembly, which started as the Tri-States Medical Association, is one of the largest sectional societies of general practitioners in the United States. Approximately 1,000 physicians were present to hear lectures by 22 nationally and internationally known members of the profession.

Dr. Wade, former editor of the Quarterly of Chi Zeta Chi and at present a member of the Permanent Committee of the Grand Council of the Fraternity on the JOURNAL, conducts the Wade Clinic in Hot Springs, Arkansas.

The new president of the Ohio State Medical Association has honored several members of the Fraternity in the selection of his committees. L. L. Bigelow, Ω, of Columbus, is a member of a special committee on workmen's compensation; C. W. Kirkland, of Bellaire, is a member of the Council's Judicial Committee; and the committee on Preventive Medicine is reappointed for the fourth time with V. C. Rowland, K, of Cleveland, as chairman and Jonathan Forman, Ω, of Columbus, as a member.

CHAPTER NEWS

BETA CHAPTER
University of Illinois

The Chapter held an informal house party and dance in honor of the incoming freshmen at the chapter house April 27.

The Chapter's basketball team won the West Side professional school championship of the city of Chicago, in a league composed of medical, dental, and pharmacy fraternities of Rush Medical College, the University of Illinois, and Loyola University. The champions planned to visit Urbana to play the freshman team of the University of Illinois.

After making a relatively slow start in rushing, the Chapter has succeeded in pledging 25 men.

LAMBDA PHI CHAPTER
University of Pennsylvania

The Chapter held its annual spring dance at the house on April 5. As usual, it was host to the other medical fraternities in the city. Doctors Donald Pillsbury and Joseph Missett, with their wives, were among the faculty Phi Rho's present.

The Chapter, in defending its interfraternity basketball championship won last year, only managed to finish second. The competition was very keen, the Secretary writes, and in view of the fact that several of the fraternities have a leg on the challenge cup, there should be a greater interest in the sport next year. It has certainly proved, he adds, to be a valuable source of the much-needed exercise that the medical student ordinarily fails to get.

Interfraternity Conference

Member fraternities of the Professional Interfraternity Conference have been informed by the secretary-treasurer that the regular biennial meeting of the Conference will be held on Friday and Saturday, October 11 and 12, 1935, in Chicago, Illinois. Arrangements have been completed with the Union League Club, one of Chicago's oldest and best clubs, for the accommodation of visitors and for the holding of the business session. The Conference has secured reasonable rates for the delegates—single rooms with bath at $2.50 per night and double rooms with bath at $5.00 per night. All delegates will be given complimentary guest cards; the athletic and other features of the Club will be available at the regular charge made to members; and there will be adequate private meeting and dining rooms.

Each member fraternity is entitled to three delegates, and while this does not mean that each fraternity must send three delegates, Conference officials hope there will be a large attendance and urge that each member fraternity have at least one national officer present if this is at all possible.

Registration will start at 9 a.m. on Friday, the eleventh, with the first business session beginning one hour later. "An excellent program will be prepared," says the secretary-treasurer's letter, "and each fraternity is requested to suggest the topics it would like to have discussed, so that the papers can be prepared accordingly." Later the member fraternities will be asked to name those of their own members who are qualified to prepare and present papers on the subjects to be outlined, and the completed program will be distributed in advance of the meeting.

Vol. XXXI May, 1935 No. 7

THIS journal is published by the Fraternity with the hope that it will be read by every living member and in an attempt to interpret the life of the medical student and the work of the Fraternity to the individual alumnus.

The JOURNAL takes its leave of you—pledges, actives, and alumni, old and new—with this issue, to return again in the Fall, and the Editor—chastened and, we hope, a wiser man after his freshman year in the position with which the Fraternity honored him last September—says “au revoir” and wishes you smooth sailing through the summer months. He thanks you, too, for the tolerance and good humor with which you have received his first year's offerings, and for the kindly words which some of you have written him.

When we took over the JOURNAL from the capable hands of Dr. Forman, we begged you, in our salutatory editorial, to GIVE US NEWS, and you have given us news—not always as promptly or as completely as journalistic practice would have it, perhaps, but cheerfully and with a spirit of cooperation that has been gratifying to observe. And so we say “thanks, again” to all you correspondents—amateurs and professionals, to our enthusiastic and willing associates, Dr. Simpson and Dr. Stewart; and to Dr. Elliott for his sage counsel from the Central Office. May the future see you quite as cheerful and as cooperative as has the past.

Looking forward, we urge every member of the Fraternity who now has, or who may have during the summer, material for the next number of the JOURNAL, to stow away in his memory, or in his memorandum book, the deadline date, October 1, 1935. With that “parting shot,” we silence our typewriter and put away our editorial visor until another school year shall have rolled around.

month, instead of amputating a leg, Herrmann found it necessary to remove only the dead end of the big toe. “Within three months,” writes Mr. de Kruif, “warm blood was running in both this man's feet. He was back at work. He could walk great stretches, not tiring, without pain.”

That victory, however, by no means brought the world to Herrmann's feet. It was, on the contrary, just the beginning of a long, tedious trail marked by much patient experimentation, by setbacks and successes. With the help of an ambitious, young Irishman named Edward McGrath, who had just received his M.D., Herrmann, in the Spring of 1933, perfected a successor to the original, bicycle-pump, vacuum machine—a queer, automatic, mechanical animal, that was crude, and infernally ingenious—and fool-proof. With faultless precision it switched the pressure of the air around cold, painful, ulcerated, gangrenous feet—four times per minute—from eighty millimeters negative to twenty millimeters positive—and this after the engineers of one of our biggest electrical companies had told him it couldn't be done.

Batting Average—1.000

“Inside a year,” writes Mr. de Kruif, “Louis could report that, out of fourteen sufferers with dying feet due to slowly obliterating arteries, to whom the new automatic machine had given five or more treatments a day—in all fourteen all gangrene had been stopped, or its occurrence prevented.” And each of these had been advised to have one or both their legs amputated.

Much more could be said of “Pavaex” and of the miracles, or seeming-miracles, which Herrmann has wrought with it. Much could be written of what it promises for the future — of the agony and suffering it will prevent and alleviate, and of the misery it might prevent if the lack of dollars did not stand in the way.

As for Louis Herrmann, “he explains that he only had the moment's hunch, skiing with that old man on Jungfrau Mountain, to click into place the enormous mass of science given to mankind by hundreds of famous, of unknown, of forgotten searchers who discovered all the anatomy, physiology, mechanics, and electricity—without which pavaex would have been utterly impossible.”

RUSHING NOT A GAME

With a few exceptions, poor results in rushing are usually due to laziness. Quite often the weakest fraternity with a poor chapter house will sweep the campus in rushing. While it is true all men are not good salesmen, the essential requisites for successful rushing are enthusiasm and early contacts. The national status of your Fraternity may be a great aid in rushing, but the members of no chapter can afford to barricade themselves in a mansion and expect prospective members to batter down the portals for admission on the strength of tradition alone. It requires planning and work.—Marshall Stewart, AA.

Barlow Library

tees, of whom Dr. Barlow, Dr. Wesley W. Beckett, and Dr. Francis M. Pottenger, Δ, have remained as members until the present. Dr. Granville MacGowan, Δ, who died recently, was also a member until his death.

Makes Valuable Addition in 1907

In 1907, Dr. Barlow was able to make a fine addition to the Library when he obtained from the Library of the Surgeon-General in Washington, D.C., a large number of files of valuable medical journals, which brought the total, in 1908, to 1,912 bound volumes of books and periodicals and 2,000 volumes of unbound journals. Since then, large gifts of books have been made by the Los Angeles Public Library, the Pasadena Medical Library, the Alhambra Public Library, and many private individuals, so that the last report showed 18,119 volumes, exclusive of unbound periodicals and duplicates—a figure which placed the institution in the “large library” class.

Today, this imposing collection of medical works, for which Dr. Barlow's donation of 1906 laid the foundation, is housed in the Library of the Los Angeles County Medical Association — a haven for all classes of medical readers, “from all who wish to keep up with the rapid advance of medical knowledge in general,” (to quote from the December, 1934 number of California and Western Medicine) to those who desire to make an exhaustive study of some special subject.”

CUTTER NAMED HEALTH EDITOR

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, I, former Grand President of Phi Rho Sigma, has been made health editor of the Chicago Tribune. In this position, he is the author of the Tribune's “How To Keep Well” column.

In a full-page announcement in its issue of February 23, 1935, The Tribune presents Dr. Cutter's credentials as follows: “Dr. Irving S. Cutter, Health Editor of the Chicago Tribune, received his degree in medicine from the University of Nebraska, of which he was the dean of the college of medicine from 1915 to 1925. During the World War he had charge of the medical service at Camp Gordon, Georgia. Since 1925, he has been the dean of the medical school, Northwestern University. He has been medical director of Passavant Memorial hospital, Chicago, since 1928. He is a trustee of Northwestern University, and of Wesley Memorial hospital, Chicago, a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, a member of the American Medical association, American Chemical society, and of the Association of American Medical Colleges, of which he is a former president. He was the first editor of the Nebraska State Medical Journal and is a member of the editorial board of the Annals of Medical History. Doctor Cutter is the author of numerous monographs dealing with science and education: The Origin of Life, 1929; School of Medicine, 1930; The History of Obstetrics and Gynecology, 1933; The History of Physical Therapy, 1933, etc.”

ALUMNI NEWS

Dr. Henry J. Graham, E, is one of three residents of Mishawaka, Indiana, who, on April 29, 1935, were awarded the first memberships in the Legion of Honor of the Lions' club of that city. The South Bend (Ind.) Tribune reports that Dr. Graham received the membership of achievement, "awarded for outstanding achievement in his profession of medicine and for his personal service to the community." (Dr. Graham has been seriously ill since he suffered a severe stroke on October 26, 1934, but his condition has recently been improved.)

Dr. Eric Oldberg, A, has been appointed acting head of the department of surgery at the University of Illinois.

Dr. Albert D. Frost, X, professor of ophthalmology at Ohio State University, took part in the fifth annual graduate course in ophthalmology and otolaryngology sponsored by the University of Michigan and the Michigan State Medical society, April 22 to 27. On the latter date, Dr. Frost discussed "Papilloedema and Its Differential Diagnosis" and "Indications for Various Squint Operations," and spoke at a meeting of the Detroit Ophthalmological society. He also conducted a round table discussion at the University.

Dr. Fulton Jones, AΦ, of Fort Smith, Arkansas, is the author of a paper on "Uterine Hemorrhage," read before the fifty-ninth annual session of the Arkansas Medical Society, held in Little Rock, April 16-18, 1934, and printed in the Society's Journal No. 7, 1934.

Dr. Albert Soiland, Δ, of Los Angeles, has written in Radiology for February, 1935, an article entitled "The Social and Economic Aspects of Cancer," in which he presents a nation-wide program for the control of cancer. Besides urging the establishment of a central bureau of cancer study and research with branches in all accredited universities, hospitals, and clinics having adequate facilities, Dr. Soiland recommends that restrictions on the use of X-rays and radium be tightened; that surgical treatment be approved by the proper men after consultation; that the prospective patient receive a complete clinical examination with consultation among internist, surgeon, radiologist, and pathologist before treatment begins; and that the records of every cancer patient be filed with the central bureau.

Dr. Don Moffat, A, has been appointed resident physician at St. Vincent's Hospital in Los Angeles.

Dr. W. W. Beckett, A '88, has recently recovered from a prolonged illness. He is medical director of a large Pacific Coast insurance company and a member of the board of trustees of the University of Southern California.

CHAPTER ETERNAL

Dr. William V. Mullin, M., died of septicemia in Cleveland Clinic Hospital on April 25, 1935. One of the leading otolaryngologists in the country, Dr. Mullin was head of the department of otolaryngology at Cleveland Clinic since 1926, having come there from Colorado Springs, Colorado, where he was in practice for 16 years. He received his doctor's degree from the University of Denver in 1908 and later did post-graduate work in the Killian and Halle Clinics in Germany. Noted particularly for his study of allergy and his work on sinus diseases, Dr. Mullin was treasurer of the American Laryngological Association; a member of the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology, the American Otological Society, the Association for the Study of Allergy, the Cleveland Academy of Medicine, the American Board of Otolaryngology, and the Editorial Board of the Annals of Otolaryngology, and Rhineology; secretary of the Section on Laryngology, Rhinology, and Otology of the A.M.A. from 1926 to 1928 and its chairman in 1929; and a fellow of the American College of Surgeons. He is survived by his wife and one daughter.

Dr. Carl Schlegel, B '31, died recently of injuries received in an automobile accident. He was engaged in active practice besides being instructor in pathology in the medical school of the University of Illinois.

Dr. Edward B. Gleason, professor of Otology in the graduate school of the University of Pennsylvania, died recently at the age of 80.

Dr. Walter Ford Henderson, died on April 18 in his home city, Jackson, Mississippi. Born on January 3, 1892 near Shreveport, Louisiana, Dr. Henderson graduated from the Vanderbilt University medical school with the class of 1916. He served as Lieutenant in the Medical Officers Corps of the Army in Kansas from August, 1917 until he was honorably discharged in June, 1918. He was married on October 7, 1917. Following his discharge from the Army he practised medicine in Shreveport and later in DeRidder, Louisiana, and in 1921 began the study of roentgenology at Tulane University, Johns Hopkins Hospital, and the University of Michigan. Upon completing his post-graduate course, he became director of the X-ray department of the Baptist Hospital in Jackson, Mississippi. In September, 1925 he took a similar position at the Touro Infirmary in New Orleans, resigning in December, 1932 to undergo an operation at the Mayo Clinic. He returned to Jackson in May, 1933 to his old position at the Baptist Hospital, remaining there until his death. The organizations of which Dr. Henderson was member include the American College of Physicians; the Radiological Society of North America; the Radiological Society of North America; the A.M.A.; the Southern Medical, Louisiana State, and Orleans Parish medical associations; the Central Medical Society, Kappa Alpha fraternity, and the Mississippi Art Association.

ON ALUMNI ASSOCIATIONS

[Editor's Note: The Fraternity Jeweler's Cuff of Burr, Patterson and Auld Company, for April 12, 1935, furnishes the following food for thought.]

In glancing over various fraternity magazines one cannot help being impressed by the space devoted to plans and ideas for making Alumni Associations more efficient, thus enabling the members to carry into their lives after leaving the chapter house the ideals and purposes of the fraternity. When we were publishing 'Fraternity Life,' we used an editorial which we thought at the time was very good, and feeling it will bear repeating, we are including it for your consideration in this number.

"A point on which all people connected with fraternities heartily agree is that the Alumni Associations as constituted at present are beyond question the weakest part of the entire fraternity system. They also concede that they have shown little improvement except at brief intervals since they were first formed. Moreover, in every fraternity, regardless of age or size, the same condition exists. Associations are carried as active that have shown little or no activity in years, and both national and local officials are unable to keep alive the spirit and enthusiasm they would like to see shown by the organization.

"It seems as though what life an association shows is always spasmodic. Not enough men have been coming to the weekly luncheons or the monthly dinners, and some energetic men start a post card and telephone campaign with the result that a few more are added. These newly attracted brothers may drop off after a time and other new men taking their place. But in a little while the association drops back again into a period of inactivity.

"Such a condition is certainly not due to the personnel, for all the members looked at as individuals are the men that anyone would select as leaders, men who have the ability to do things—in fact most of them are either leaders or rapidly rising to leadership in their chosen lines. There is a difference in ages which might account to some degree for lack of proper interest in each other, also a difference in the character of the colleges and its stamp from which they have graduated. These factors may have something to do with it. And strange as it might seem, leadership in these groups is seldom lacking.

"At best though they are but remnants of social units in colleges transferred to everyday life far away from their former locations and environment. The point of view of the members is a backward one, to the student days and the old friendships which are cherished by the individual but not always familiar to the group in its entirety. After all, does anyone want to tell or to listen to these experiences indefinitely or would they not rather look forward to the accomplishment of a definite object in which they could play a part?

"Some of the sororities have found a solution for the alumnae problems in summer camps, settlement schools, hospital work, etc., and the results have been astonishing. Bridge parties and teas help finance these undertakings and alumnae meetings are becoming sewing parties to provide clothing and equipment necessary to maintain social work.

"The curse of the Alumni Associations is inactivity. They are trying to be strictly social organizations where no such need exists, and as run at present, very few, if any, of them justify their existence. That person who can find something for them to do, something for them to look forward to in which they can point with pride will find the solution not only for one fraternity but for all."

CHAPTER HOUSE COSTS SCORED AS EXCESSIVE

Delegates from 66 national college fraternities to the National Interfraternity Conference which opened in New York on November 30, 1934, heard the cost of chapter houses scored as excessive and the fraternity system defended as an aid to college administration by Dr. Dixon Ryan Fox, president of Union College. Blaming the costly and heavily mortgaged condition of chapter houses in general on the competition for display, Dr. Fox stated that "chapters who are long unwilling and unable to pay their bills should be closed out." The charge that fraternities are snobbish is a serious one, he admitted, and is "unhappily often justified," but there is a difference, he pointed out, between snobbery and high standards.

In opening the Conference, Chairman Cecil J. Wilkinson, of Washington, D. C., described the college fraternity as "the nearest approach to democratic self-government found on the campus." College authorities handicap themselves, Mr. Wilkinson told the gathering, if they do not make use of the fraternity's possibilities as a democratizing and socializing influence on the students. The college, he asserted, is responsible for making the fraternity live up to those possibilities.

Alumni records of 50 middle-west fraternities indicate that the average fraternity alumnus has been practicing race suicide, The Michigan Daily reports Stewart S. Howe, president of the Stewart Howe Alumni Service, as saying in his address to the Conference delegates. There is only one and six-tenths children per fraternity alumnus family, his figures show.

When I'm getting ready for an argument with a man, I spend one-third of my time thinking about myself and what I'm going to say and two-thirds thinking about him and what he is going to say.—Abraham Lincoln.

DR. CUTTER SPEAKER AT NEBRASKA SERVICES

Dr. Irving S. Cutter, dean of the Northwestern University college of medicine, was the speaker this year at the Phi Rho Sigma Lectureship sponsored by Iota chapter, and held May 11th. This lectureship is an annual occasion presented to the medical school in honor of some deceased prominent alumnus. This year they honored Dr. Byron B. Davis (Iota '01) whose death two years ago left a great gap in the ranks of Nebraska's noted surgeons.

Preceding the lecture a dinner was held at the chapter house for Dr. Cutter, alumni and actives.

GANGSTERS' LAST HOST

Kenneth F. Schneider, B, "35," Cook county Morgue attendant, has had many notorious customers during his past two years of service in Chicago. John Dillinger and "Baby Face" Nelson were the most famous customers and lesser lights were Jack Klutas, kidnapper; Gus Winkler; and Jack Malloy, alleged gangster head of the Chicago Movie Union. The morgue register shows a steady stream of clients from gangland at the rate of about one body a week. Over 75 gangsters have claimed the marble slabs of this morgue for their last slumber during the past two years.
